The Bubble Lives

The following article is a brief that I had the privilege to present to the Erindale College Council at its last meeting. The proposals will be voted on at the next meeting. However, I cannot take full credit for the work only that of organizing all of the information collected by the Bubble Co-ordinating Committee.

A Bubble Brief

We at Erindale College are suffering greatly from the lack of a large meeting, multi-purpose area. For athletics once the snow falls, all that we have is the Colman Garage. It is possible that we will even lose the Garage next year to be replaced by a re-styled physics shed. In the winter our beautiful football-soccer field is not usable nor are our volleyball or tennis courts. The Physics Shed is hardly a compensation. All meetings of a large scale like the E.C.C. or the Symposium have to be tightly scheduled into Room 292 around classes, dramatics and the Cine Club. In short, for what we are aspiring to, we have not adequate facilities.

This year our men's basketball team played championship ball in their league. The Renison College Invitational banner is ample proof of that. Our men's volleyball team played right up to the semi-finals in the intra-mural league before defaulting out. The lacrosse team also played extremely well. The girls athletics were almost as successful in their endeavors this year. Yet our teams spend more time on buses and in cars going to off-campus gyms than to play and practice.

If Erindale has the Hart House gym for basketball between 1:00 and 1:45 a total of forty-five minutes playing time, travelling time involved can be as high as one hour and a half. Not only is it costly to shuttle people around but the time lost and classes cut makes the sport most unattractive, particularly to spectators. This of course is not to mention that Hart House is totally inadequate for the population of the St. George Campus let alone the expanding populations of Erindale and Scarborough.

This year, our Athletic Dept. spent $600 on gym rentals for practices and games. As the methods of transporting the teams to the different gyms was varied, an estimate of the cost of travelling expenses is not available. But it must not be forgotten that the $600 was spent last year and will probably increase as our population increases next year.

We feel, therefore, that it is not unrealistic for Erindale to have a temporary athletic facility, until the construction of the second phase of our new College building is complete. At present, that completion date is September 1972 barring any construction strikes or slowdowns. Contracts by the way, are due to be negotiated in the summer of '71. At best, we feel that Erindale will not have an athletic facility for three years. That means that with a population of better than two thousand, we will still have to bus people all over South Peel to gyms or athletically stagnate in the winters to come.

We, of the Bubble Co-ordinating Committee propose that with the consent of the Erindale College Council, we purchase an air-supported structure that we affectionately call the Bubble and that appropriate financing be decided by the Council.

We have no specific design in mind at the present time but a 144 foot by 124 foot bubble will

PLANS Promises Promises

We have met quickly and not even all together since the election but we offer you a brief resumé of some plans for the start of next year.

The three most immediate plans that will occupy S.A.G.E. over the summer are: What will we do with The Colman Place? What sort of Orientation will we plan? And what about Social?

Besides these, we will be concerned with the Used Bookstore, Course Evaluations and so on but these are more straightforward. It is on the following three areas, however, that we especially invite your comments.

Colman Place

With the increased demand for on-campus housing and no hope for accommodation in September, it seemed reasonable for it to be converted to another residence.

However, with the evidence obtained in the questionnaire "Residence of Student Centre" in which 160 students voted 3-1 in favour of leaving the house as it is, the conversion was defeated in the meeting of the Erindale College Housing Association. Now it goes to the Student Facilities Committee and will be debated on the same grounds with the E.C.H.A. recommending that it stay a Student Centre.

Now, if our hopes are realized and Colman Place is left as a Student Centre, you can see how the responsibility will rest on S.A.G.E. and the students to prove that it can work better than last year.

If not, when the question arises next year (as it certainly will) the argument in favour of keeping the Colman Place as the student centre will be even weaker than it was this year.

Therefore S.A.G.E. will review the suggestions on questionnaires, welcome any others and write up a short brief of ideas on how it can be utilized more fully, which will be distributed.

This brief will also outline what sort of measures that will have to be taken to assign responsibility to individuals for the running and the upkeep of the house.

Orientation

The purpose of Orientation (would there were another word!) is to acquaint freshmen with their College.

This means to provide them with as much information as possible about what Erindale is like, what courses and freedoms are available to them and especially how they can contribute if they wish to.

The other equally important part of Orientation is to meet people.

The first facet of Orientation can be achieved by mailings in August and of course can be continued into Registration Week in various ways.

The second half of Orientation can only be accomplished in one week.

How?

Last year a phenomenal amount of work and planning went into a full week of activities in which the philosophy was "to keep 'em at it". The attendance of these activities except the dance was not what it could have been.

Our plan for a different and hopefully better Orientation will be as follows.

1. Our full effort will go into planning three really good events for the Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of the week.

This is because some students keep their jobs during that week and also

ELECTIONS

It was Tuesday Night at Election Central (formerly Room 155) and the tote board was telling the grim truth. Behind the board, the muted voices of the Chief Returning officer and his staff was a continual hum and served to remind the hushed crowd that Erindale's political future was only one hour away.

Teslak and Neilson sat quietly in corners watching the board and chain smoking. Rudolf was off in a class someplace suffering the onslaught of existentialism and the jitters. A nervous laugh spread across the counting room as tension drained but only temporarily. A dishevelled Morningstar wandered in and out muttering something about cliques and Morrison did not say anything.

Another fifty ballots were recorded on the board and the hush broke into a babble "Hey Brian Jones got a write-in vote for President" The throngs in the hall watched and a flashbulb popped. Tizzabell watched a while and then crept into Rm 101 and slept. Pirozzo just sat there and smiled. The final count was:

President	Neilson 94
	Rudolf 216
	Teslak 103
Vice President I	Morningstar 255
	Morrison 133
Vice-President II	Bell 162
	Longo 141
	Joy 66
Secretary	Arntfield 274
	Hunter 113
Year Rep II	Chrysler 142
	Gourlay 93
	Lown 84
Year Rep III	Reihl 160
Year Rep III	Moran 66
	Quirt 64
	Pirozzo 73

The voting breakdown was:

First Year	256
Second Year	144
Third Year	48
NO vote	23
total	441

We are happy to say that 52% of the population of the college cared enough to vote.

Motherloade's Believe it or Else

In Wednesday's Varsity, the Staff felt that the candidates here were running for The Student's Administrative Government... OF Erindale.

Thus when they initiated it "as newspapers have their wont" S.A.G.E. became S.A.G.. Is this an omen?

EDITORIAL RECOGNITION

Just minutes after the results of the S.A.G.E. elections were completed, Eric Miglin congratulated Bob Rudolf on his victory. Perhaps here we see a spark of what is to happen in the future. With the strong voting response that Hurd and Miglin got from Erindale, we hope that we are not forgotten.

People keep saying that in the next elections the S.A.C. candidates will pay more attention to Scarboro and Erindale. What we should be crying is "Please realize that we are here now!" Too much time and effort has been wasted in the past only touching the surface of what the suburban campuses have to offer to complement St. George. We ask and hope that all communications frequencies be explored in the future. We can help build the U. of T. even more.

WHAT CLIQUE?

A few days before the elections, a number of pamphlets were circulated stating that the people who work in the S.A.G.E. - ERINDALIAN office are a clique of individuals unwilling to talk or listen to the masses. It has been the policy of S.A.G.E. to have someone in the office at all times. Naturally that is an impossibility when one considers the number of meetings that the members must attend. Even after most of the daytime students are gone, there is someone by the phone usually until 10 p.m. or 11 p.m. It must be remembered that all of this is done without compensation.

Admittedly at times, the door is closed to keep the noise from the hall from disturbing a meeting or the production of the ERINDALIAN but seldom is it ever locked. That a student should be afraid to walk in and ask what is going on is absurd. If you care at all about your money, you should have no fear of the people that you elect to spend your money.

Apparently the body electorate does not believe that there is any power clique in the S.A.G.E. - ERINDALIAN office. Only 23 people responded to the VOTE NO campaign. A total of 52% of the student body voted in the election, and (of all people) chose Bob Rudolf as the new president. Would one consider the founder, former editor, now news editor as one of the clique? With whom does the truth lie?

Dear Sirs

I read with interest M. Lorne Beamish's impassioned plea - Please Don't Burst My Bubble - March 9 but I am still wondering whether his "negligible lack of maintenance" and "lack of inadequate housing" are the result of inadequate proof-readers or a hardly negligible lack of education on his part.

In view of the need for some fast action in the area of recreational and sports facilities for Erindale however, we should give Mr. Beamish the benefit of the doubt in the hope that his double negative approach will lead to a positive solution.

Yours truly

Youth Wants to 'NO' Dept. The C.S.P.C.P.

Well, brothers and sisters, I have once again heard your cry for tasteful entertainment. Here it is: You say, "There's too much cruelty in the world," and I agree. You say, "The innocent need protection," and I agree, so me and some of my disciples have started a revival type meeting right here under your warm little ivy-covered walls. We're gonna save paper!

The C.S.P.C.P. - The Canadian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Paper.

How many times have you crumpled paper because you - yes you, couldn't solve a problem. Why take it out on your defenseless paper, ignoring its tiny screens to vent your frustrations? We have published an unabridged, unexpurgated pamphlet (Available on request - for a nominal fee - when accompanied by an adult). A Reader's Digest - type condensed version of the "Care and Training" chapter has been included.

If you find your paper is not easily trained and you often discover distasteful excretments on the floor show the mess to it and then hit it on the nose with a rolled up dog.

If you have a rather frail paper and you don't want to walk it in foul weather lay a few dogs and cats on the basement floor and teach it to go there.

If you are lucky enough to own a flying paper, here is a helpful hint: line the bottom of the cage with birds. It is much simpler to clean up.

The Board of Directors of the C.S.P.C.P. Celebrity Chairman: M.L. Beaming.

This intrepid crusader and one time torrid tester of tacky Tinker-Toys was born of rich but well to do parents and got his first break in show business at age twelve (You'll remember him as the powder-blue centaur in 'Fantasia') although some cynical critics said his performance in his first movie "...flat..." (Chicago semi-annual book review and T-shirt catalogue), and that the character, as he portrayed him, was "...2-d and lacked depth..." (Farmer's Almanac, 1958) and "...unreal..." (Jack and Jill, Vol. 73), it was generally felt that it was not a good role to show off his many talents (not to mention his well-shaped fetlocks which were constantly blocked by a blonde centaur-starlet who kept throwing herself at him). The peak of his career came when he changed his name to Michael Beaming, a literal translation of his real name. (It was thought that as "Troy Donahue" he wasn't getting enough really he-man parts). He then co-starred in "Spartacus and the 10,000 Let Down Slave Girls" starring George Oxytoxin) and won an Oscar for Best Supporting Satyr.

Since then his career has skyrocketed like a Roman candle on a rainy 5th of July. Eager to sell himself - for a price, he agreed to back our cause. He is available for autographs at any time during the week between 3:40 and twenty to four on Tuesday afternoons.

See him in "I was a Teenage Wombat" and thrill to scenes like these:

Molly: I'm thrilled

W.B.: Me too.

Lucy: A rose by any other name would still smell as musky.

W.B.: Me, too.

President (by acclamation): P.A. Partfreak. This short shyler and veritable vestibule for very vitaminized vermin began her phenomenal rise to anonymity as a channel crosser (WGR and channel 4). Her brilliant career was interrupted when she was called into service where she served as a battleship for five years, until tragedy struck. After getting bombed during a late-night blackout, she was renamed the "H.M.S. Rabbit" (with apologies to Dave Adams), an inappropriate yet incongruous handle, which stuck.

Co-Editors For Erindalian

We, of the Erindalian are happy to let everybody, and we do mean everybody, know, that the newspaper, Erindale's own publication, will be under the co-editorship of Michael L. Beamish and Patricia Gilhooly. They both have worked hard and deserve every encouragement of the staff and our readers. It is my hope that they will be able to carry on in the fine tradition of the newspaper. I know that they will be better in their endeavours than I have been in the past months and can only offer my own congratulations and continued support in '70-'71.

COUNTRY GIRL MAKES GOOD

By Mona McFarmer

When the semi-weekly mule man delivered the letter from the big office that said I could live in the coop I was so plum happy I fixed myself a whole mess of grits and groundhog gizzards to celebrate. I was downright pleased 'cause I had seen the cabin way back last year. There was a big field out front where I could pasture my very own pet cow, Bruce, and a cement pond out back where I could do all my washin'. There was lots of woods where my hound-dawg Killer would be dead certain to find lots of possums and other critters to hunt.

But my heart fair got broke into three and a half bushels of pieces when they done told me that I would have to live citified if I wanted to bunk there. But after a long conflag with my pappy and the preacher man I decided that the edjumatation I could get at the big University would be good for me. But oh, how I hated to leave my kin. I near busted into tears when they all come down to see me off. Every blessed one of them was there. All my relations includin' Aunt bessy and Uncle Claude and even my thirteen cousins on my fathers side, twice removed, had come all the way down from Snelgrove to see me off. And they all brung such beautiful presents. There was basket lunches, lots of perserves (includin' lots of my favorite, gooseberry jam), fancy new duds and even a pair of almost new hobnail boots that had only one lace missin' and a few scratches on the copper toes. So, fair there is no point in hoping for a good turnout at the really worthwhile event of the day when everybody has been going full tilt all day long.

2. No obligation. We will offer the best programme that we can and as well in advance as possible and let them stand on their own merit.

3. The beanies, hazing and games be cut out.

The best approach to promote friendship is to treat people as personalities and not as a label, "Freshman".

We feel it is about time that a mature approach be applied to this problem; the faster that the High School ethic is dropped the better for the incoming student and Erindale College.

Besides the whole Beanie Phenomenon is just a takeover of the fraternity customs which may work for them but for a large body of people it just isn't going to come off.

4. Is there some way to involve new faculty? If the Orientation can include some challenging Debate or discussion which would be of interest to the new faculty coming to the College as well as to the students this would be a positive step. At present there is no welcome procedure for incoming faculty.

Social

We have some good precedents to work with. The Hallowe'en Dance, Homecoming Float, Car Rallies, Spanish Night, Youth '70 are all obvious repeats. The Formal? We shall see.

Really Orientation is an impossible task. Five hundred new students do not really get an adequate picture of Erindale and meet a half-decent number of friends in one week no matter how good it is!

Therefore some sort of follow-up program of events (dances, public lectures etc.) should be planned during the summer to take up the slack between Orientation and the time when the committees start to function.

Communication

Any suggestions on the above plans will be welcomed.

You can communicate by means of your representatives, whose names are listed in the paper and whose pictures appeared last week, or any member of the executive.

If you do not find him in person or do not have the time, then leave a message in the S.A.G.E. office. One tip though, if you want the message to get to this person do it yourself. Write out a note, address it and leave it in the slots which you will find on the first desk in the office. If you are really concerned, leave your number and ask that he phone and confirm that the message was received.

One Final Note

The new S.A.G.E. does not come into power until after the exams. We will be working though, before that but only on an informal basis.

representative of the security office informed us the policing presents no problem as the Bubble is easily included in the regular rounds.

Much to our delight, the Mississauga Fire Marshall has given his whole-hearted approval to the Bubble and the planning board has no restrictions on air supported structures.

The idea of a Bubble dome is not a new one. In Sweden the first bubble was inflated nine years' ago and still stands today. All over Europe bubble structures are being used for gymnasiums, swimming pools, hockey rinks, warehouses and meeting halls. Here in Ontario, Trent University has acquired a bubble for its athletic facilities. Their population this year was fifteen hundred, just what our proposed population is next year. At Trent, they had encountered the same problems that we have and used a bubble to accommodate them. Toronto's own Boulevard Club has a Bubble over its tennis courts to have tennis all year round.

An estimated cost of the bubble the size that we would require was given to us by Bob Woods, a representative of Span-Air Ltd. of Don Mills. His estimate of $70,000.00 covers all construction of the perimeter apron necessary to hold the bubble down, the price of the blowers to keep it up, the heaters, lighting, and doorways plus the initial installation. This cost is only a rough one as the structure is custom built and the cost varies depending on the number of variables that the individual customer requires.

Financing of the bubble could be met in many ways. Last Thursday, we, through the use of a questionnaire, received the support of 240 students for a division of the SAC levy for the St. George Campus Centre. Since then, we have discovered that the $15 levy will not be imposed until after the feasibility study on the Campus Centre is complete. We are now hoping, with the approval of S.A.G.E. to have a referendum proposed as soon as it is constitutionally possible for our own levy of $5-$10 to be spread over a number of years if necessary, to pay for the Bubble. Mr. Woods of Span-Air said the financial arrangements can be tailored to the individual customer.

If the bubble concept is accepted by the E.C.C. the Bubble Co-ordinating Committee proposes to have a massive fund raising drive this summer through a walkathon, chocolate bar sales, and the like to allow our student population to demonstrate to the community what real student power is. This, of course, is not to prevent the faculty from joining us in our cause.

If we are fortunate enough to buy the bubble out right, and we find that in four years we have no need for it, the resale value is very high. The only real depreciation is in the blowers which, like all mechanical devices, suffer from wear and tear. We have been told that the physical plant could use the bubble as a garage or storage space after we are through with it.

The innovative possibilities of a bubble such as we are proposing, are limitless. The original concept of Erindale College charged us with the responsibility of experimenting with new ideas, and try to break away from the old traditions. I think that with the bubble, we can take another step forward in achieving that purpose.

Our Task

As you can see, we of the Bubble Co-ordinating Committee are embarking on a task of great proportions. It is up to us to raise the money to buy or finance our Bubble. We need people to work and help us in our cause. If you wish to help us please contact myself, Doug Leeies, Mike Beamish, or John Kanakos in the S.A.G.E. - ERINDALIAN office or just leave your name and phone number so that we may contact you.

The work of the Bubble Bunch has to move with great speed if you are to have it up by next November. The action will be non-stop all summer long during which time we hope to do more than work. Even if you do not wish to help us (perish the thought) and know of some philanthropic group that could aid us in our cause, please do not hesitate to come forward. We are the people who benefit, and who can argue with that!

This scintillating, sophisticated and secretive Senlgrovan and part-time shark-herder was born with a silver spoon in her mouth (which, after many lengthy and costly operations, has been partially removed) and worked, for a time, as a prop in a juggler's act along with a well-known rubber duck (who shall remain nameless). Finding her niche as a photographer's model, she posed for the covers of such reputable magazines as True Detective and Vice Squad. (These qualifications won her this high position in the C.S.P.C.P.). Fame was not, however, enough for her (she was murdered 21 times and assaulted 12 times in January alone) and she continued her rise to stardom as hostess of the ill-fated "Coffee Shop". Yet she remained undaunted and now wanders the beloved halls of Erindale as either Chicago Molly or C.C.M. Brancusi (depending upon the prevalent hormone).

This appealing apple-cheeked actress and known Thespian (but I'm not telling) started her career as Ward of the Hay but, when it was found no one wanted to steal hay anyway, she was fired and replaced by a five million dollar computer. She was discovered by an itinerant ex-long hair and, some years later, he promised to make her a star. Her first role was as "Chorus" girl in the school play last year. (It was in this job that she earned her now-famous nickname, L.A. "Legs" Fast). An agent (with a noticeable hangnail) got her the part of a shrewish wife in a later production (a performance "unrivaled", the reviews said, "even by the great Taylor in "Taming of the Shrew"). (eds. note: although I've never seen Rod Taylor as the shrewish wife, I'd be inclined to bet him, anyway). It is reported that she has accepted a major part in the remake of "Gone With the Wind" where she will play the title role.

laden down, I set out to get my learnin'.

I had a fair nice walk down except that it took an extry long time because I had to make the one lace do so I had to tie the both boots with the same lace and I couldn't take as long a stride. But I couldn't just believe right off how windin' the roads were. Why they're as twisted as the entrials of a fresh killed hog. Where I come from the roads are so straight that the crows use them to fly by!

When I got here I guess the other girls must's a been expectin' to see ma all decked out in my Sunday-go-to-meeting duds 'cause they surely did take a powerful long gander at me. Then the one they called my room-mate took my grip and showed me my bunk. She also showed me all kinds of new fangled gageets. Why, there was a trough inside to do my washin' in, them new electricity lights, runnin' water (cold and hot), a stove that didn't need no fire wood toted in fer it and even a magical box that got the dishes clean as a whip. (I still can't fer the life of me figure it out unless they got special trained cats in there that lick 'em that clean.)

sort. She said that she had always lived right here in Missysoggy. And my room was prettier than a striped kitten. There was drawers (to store all them preserves), and a closet where I could hang my dress and ground-hog skin coat. And the softest gall durn bed I ever did lay myweary bones on. Quick as a cottontail I commensed to talkin' with the other girls and I soon got to know that they wasn't very learned about country ways. So I's been givin them lessons and teachin' them the meanin' of all them country words like barn, field, cow, chop, silo, grainery, hay-loft, chicken coop, (that's what I thought the place was goin' to be like except fer people but ther seem to be some distinction between coop and co-op), tractor, plow, hay, fallow and manure.) Though some of them done learned me a new word fer that last one.)

Since I been livin' here I have done learned me a lot of city ways. Some of them seem kind of dum but some of them ain't too bad, considerin'. But I cain't wait fer the rexeminations to get here and gone 'cause I sure nough do want to get back on home to the farm. Sometimes I get so lonely at night that I swear I kin hear Bruce and Kille' callin' fer me.

Public Lecture With an M.P.

Last Monday, H. Chapell Q.C. M.P. for Peel South, addressed about 70 political science students. Mr. Chapell was questioned on subjects ranging from pollution, arctic sovereignty, and backbenchers to party politics at the municipal level, subsidies to western farmers, and oil reserves.

When asked about the U.S. oil restrictions on Canadian crude oil, Chapell said he was not worried. "I think we should save our oil. Why do we have to sell right away? ... we'll need it for the synthetic industries ... in the future it will be a very valuable commodity."

The wheat subsidies to western farmers had Chapell's full support. To him, the subsidies were the perfect short term policy. Chapell thought that if Canada's government were to buy the wheat and gradually give it away it would not solve any problems but rather create an international incident.

On the matter of Arctic Sovereignty and pollution, Chapell had very little to say. José Garcia summed up Chapell's stand quite well. "As a typical politician you have managed to pass the onus on to the public."

Hillary Chapell has great regard for lawyers in politics and lawyer professors. Even his fellow backbenchers have his esteem. "There is enough material among the backbenchers to form a second cabinet." Unfortunately or fortunately Chapell is not one of them.

"All things hang like a drop of dew. Upon a blade of grass." The world is held in balance. If I step out of line my world is shaken. If I begin to do things that are not expected my world will gasp. Now I feel a hundred weights pushing down upon me. I am stifled, slowly suffocating. Sitting in rooms full of talk I cannot move my eyes from windows and sunshine. I cannot stop my eyes looking at things that aren't yet there ... Wishing is weighing down my life. I am tired of dreams that don't come true. I am dreaming away my life. I am not really living but I am coming closer. My life is coming together with my dreams. Days of dream around the shadows wait. It's so hard to stay here. It's so very difficult to wait. Miles of highways beckon. Unknown faces are smiling. Everywhere I turn something tells me to go. Everyone I ask wished that they could go to. I am tired of everyone dreaming. I am tired of dead dreams and lost hope. I am tired of people saying they should have done something and never did. Life is here using. Life is here making dreams come true. I am going now to make my life a life of dreams come true. I am going even if no one else does. We need some of the dreams of the world to come true. It never hurts to try a dream.

Public Lecture The Law and You

"The Toronto Police Force is probably the best in North America". "It will be very difficult to replace Police Chief James MacKay when he retires later this year," said criminal lawyer David G. Humphrey Q.C., when he gave a public lecture at the college, March 12th. Mr. Humphrey first gave a brief resumé of the Canadian Legal structure, stating that "trial by judge and jury was the easiest way to have a serious charge reduced. The jury is composed of men and women who are only human and have sympathetic hearts. These hearts enter into the outcome of the trial; in many cases they shouldn't, but they invariably do."

A question period from the floor followed for the next two and a half hours. Several questions were centered around the ethics of a criminal lawyer; that is, how can he feel right in defending a known criminal who he knows is guilty. In answer to this Mr. Humphrey replied that every charged person is entitled to a defense attorney. "I'm a criminal lawyer; I get all the 'losers'. Nevertheless, they pay me well; even though it is 'hot' money."

Around 11:00 p.m. Mr. Humphrey asked when breakfast is served around here. The lecture ended.

He summarized law in this manner: "The law is for you, not out for you..."

Al Nurse, H. Chapell Q.C. M.P. and Mike Clare in discussion after the lecture.
